MURTAGE, Proprietor, NATIONAL REPUBLICAN, Washington, D. C. THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION THAN ANY OTHER MORNING PAPER IN THE DISTRICT OF CO-

munications, whether on business or

"I PROPOSE TO MOVE IMMEDIATELY UPON YOUR WORKS." The proper time has arrived; an acknowledged authority has spoken regarding the Third Term bugbear; and President Grant has written the most important letter of his public career, declaring that he is not a candidate for renomination. It will be read with more interest and deeper concern by the American people than any political document he has ever written. The firm and dignified explanation of his silence regarding this matter will not surprise those who understand the character of a man who has habituated himself, and whose experience has taught him, to rely upon his own methods, and whose greatest successes have been won as the result of quiet independence of thought and discreet self-dependence. Otherwise the letter is uniquely characteristic, and remarkable for the absence of clap-trap and the ordinary rhetorical subterfuges of politicians. Plainly and bluntly he gives an insight into the motives of his past life, his love for the position of General of the Army, his regard for the will of the people and his natural exultation that his first four years as Chief Magistrate of the nation were so acceptable to them that the people, without invitation from him, sought the opportunity to repeat the highest demonstration of their confidence in his abili ties. Not a word in the entire letter could be crased, and not a word added without marring the completeness and simplicity of the whole. Even the argument that the people alone are all-powerful in the selection of their officials, and that no constitutional prohibition exists to prevent them from re-electing a President for a Third Term, is concisely put in such a way as to show that it has no personal application; but is merely used as an assertion of the absoluterights of the people and an answer to the slanders of his enemies. To his single mindedness it appears that no man can control his own political future, except to destroy it, and no one man, however powerful, can dictate his own personal advancement either to his party or to the country at large. He admits, however, what every loyal man has often felt, that dent should be re elected for a Third Term. While contemplating the condition of affairs which would have existed if President Lincoln had lived and the war had lasted until the end of his second term, no one will deny the soundness of this proposition but he adds very pointedly that such emergencies are not now probable. He is simply defending the rights of the people by showing their power to thwart the schemes of ambitious men and their authority to select their own rulers in accordance with constitutional limits. There may be those who will maliciously construe this defense to mean something more than a plain interpretation of the words used will indicate, but he can afford, under the circumstances, to suffer further misrepresentation. In fact, he expects it as the natural result of the disappointment which the letter will give to one class of his enemies, and the exultation of another class, who will boast that he has been forced by them to speak against the inclinations of his own heart. But, however much he may be misrepresented, the American people will cherish his declination as the brightest, most unselfish and most patriotic act of his life. The letter will nevertheless be read by thousands and thousands of citizens in every section of the

WHEN SECRETARY DELANO inadvertently, or otherwise, alluded to Prof. Marsh as "a Mr. Marsh," the New York Tribune almost collapsed with despondent chagrin. It revived sufficiently a few days ago to refer to President Grant as "P. G.

THE possibility of a general and bloody war when Red Cloud and Spotted Tall return to the Black Hills is predicted by some of the sensational correspondents. This class of writers are never satisfied with facts as they occur, but, for the purpose of attracting attention to their trashy nonsense, they resort to gloomy predictions of the EVEN PARSON BROWNLOW is "after" Sherman's Memoirs. In the Knoxville Chronicle he quotes the prayer, "Oh! that mine enemy would write a book," and applies it pertinently to the book in question. Many of the Parson's opponents render it, "Oh! that mine enemy would not write a paragraph;" and General Sherman will probably coincide with them.

THE Iowa State Republican Convention is called to meet at Des Moines to-day. A Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Judge of the Supreme Court and Superintendent of Public Instruction are to be elected in October. All the members of the Lower House of the Legislature and half of the Senate are also to be chosen, and the next Legislature will elect a United States Se nator to succeed Sepator Wright.

IT IS BELATED that four Bostonians were in Berlin a number of years ago, and, having received an invitation to an evening plant recital of a young American, forgot the number of their host's dwelling, although they remembered the street. With true Yankee ingenuity they marched down the street whistling "Yankee Doodle" as shrilly as they could. Instantly, on reaching the sought-for number, the windows were raised and they recognized their friends This incident is being recalled as pertinent to the Centennial tidal wave of patriotic sentiment now sweeping over the country Pride in the homely melody of "Yanke Doodle" will always remain a heritage of the leyal American people; but where is the Southern Democrat who can whistle it now with any such feeling?

"THE statement comes from Washing ton," says one of our exchanges, "with every appearance of reliability, that the Hon, Oliver P. Morton, Senator from Indiana, openly announces to his friends that he is a candidate for the Presidency and will present his name to the National Convention." The "appearance of reliability" in this statement is not obvious to the naked eve of the majority of the people who know Mr. Morton's habitual reserve regarding such topics. It is no doubt the invention of some of his enemies. He would, nevertheless, make a strong candidate, and, if elected, a good President. His health has rapidly improved since the adournment of the Senate, and if there had been a similar improvement in his financial views the country would have occasion to

THE necessity that Pennsylvania avenue shall be repayed without delay is now conceded. The present pavements between the Treasury and the Capitol, it will be remembered, were laid by the old Corporation before the Board of Public Works was organized by act of Congress, and were experiments. The result of four years' use of the wood patents on this great theroughfare has demonstrated their utter inutility for streets over which heavy wagons and freight trucks are habitually drawn. If the repaying is ordered this experience should teach that the most substantial concrete or stone patents will, notwithstanding their cost, prove to be economical in the long run. A careful examination of all the patents used on other streets, at the same time taking into consideration the length of time they have been laid, and the extent to which they have been used, cannot fail to furnish ample information as regards the most durable and economical pavement. Out of our experience in this business it will be strange, indeed, if the authorities cannot arrive at some satisfactory conclusion.

THE comments of some of the Dem -Reb. ournals regarding Secretary Belknap's acion in connection with the application to decorate the graves of the Confederate dead at Arlington are based upon maliciously false assumptions. He has never refused to allow the friends of dead Southern soldiers to decorate their graves when the anplication to do so has been properly submitted. On several occasions, however a few malcontents have insisted upon intruding themselves into the cemetery on the day selected by the Grand Army of the Republic for the decoration of the graves emergencies might arise which would ren- of the Union dead. In the abstract there der it imperatively necessary that a Presi- is nothing wrong in this, and there would have been no objection to it if the design to make mischief had not been boldly apparent. As it was thus apparent, it was suggested that another day should be selected by the friends of the Confederates, and the Grand Army was allowed to carry out its programme without interruption. No one who understands the circumstances of the case as here presented will deny that Secretary Belknap has invariably acted wisely, and those who charge that he has acted for any other purpose than to prevent ill feeling are simply guilty of falsehood.

THE PEOPLE AND THE ADMINISTRATION. The outspoken indorsement of President Grant's administration by the Pennsylvania Republican Convention has aroused the people of the country to a due appreciation of the malignant slanders of the Opposition. The more the matter is examined the higher the President will stand in the estimation of the country. Personal spites, petty ambitions and malevolent slanders have for a long time inspired groundless assaults upon his course, but those assaults are now being replaced with words of praise and confidence. Laying the Third Term question aside, and banishing all the nonsensical trash from memory that has been written about it, no one can doubt that the President stands as firm in the confidence of the people as he did when his patriotic skill en abled him to vanquish the armed enemies of the Government. In other words stripped of all future complications, his record up to the present time has been acceptible beyond his most sanguine expectations. Possessed of a modest amount of self confidence, he entered upon the duties of his office when first elected to be Chief Magistrate with a sincere desire to yield to the wishes of the whole people, remove those doubts. But the reliance that desire as it has been indicated to him by the majority party in Congress. A impulses of the people will serve to point safer guide than this indication he could not have sought; but there have been times when that majority party did not plainly point out the policy to be pursued regarding the intricacles of the Southern question. At such times he ventured, with the light of past experience, to follow the dictates of his own thoughtful consideration. The invariable result has been the approval of those acts by Congress. These are a few of the facts which the action of the Lancaster convention now bring into prominence. No amount of misrepresentation can allay these truths, and the false accusations of the Opposition will not serve to destroy their effect. We repeat, then, that President Grant has reason to congratulate himself that the discussion of the Third Term project has given his party friends in one of the foremost States of the Union an opportunity, by means of a plank in their platform, to defend him against the malicious charges of his enemies. PASTUBAGE FOR HORSES AND COWS, Apply to JOHN KNOTT, Ju., at E. Lyons, Mill. on Rock Creek, or to E. LYONS, Ju., No.55 Water street, Coorgetown, Payment required to mylt-lm*
